Essay from the year 2011 in the subject Sociology - Children and Youth, grade: 1,1, University of Abertay Dundee, language: English, abstract: Historically, public discourses have used the threats young people appear to pose, as a barometer of social ills and an indicator of society's moral decline (Brannen et al. 1994). Particularly nowadays this tendency is reflected in the increasing 'evidence' issued, fuelling public fear and neo-liberal policy reaction (Côté 2002).
