As many as one in seven couples can have problems conceiving a baby. There are many reasons for infertility and, today, many different solutions. IVF is one of the most widely known fertility treatments on the market, but to whom should it be made available is a hotly debated topic: When it comes to being a parent, how old is too old? This book explores the ethical and scientific issues surrounding infertility, presenting opinions on challenging concepts such as 'saviour siblings' and sex selection, and considering the processes of adoption and surrogacy. The information inside comes from a variety of sources, including newspapers, magazines, government reports and charity groups; providing different perspectives on challenging topics. At the end of the book is a selection of activities that will encourage interaction, literacy, critical thinking and independent research. Content is accessible and engaging, tailored primarily towards the 14 to 18 age group
